

The Contingent – Privacy Policy

Collection and use of your information

At The Contingent, our key objective in collecting sufficient personal information from you is to provide a service that best meets your needs. Your personal information will only be used for the sole purpose for which it has been disclosed to us or for a related purpose for which you would reasonably expect us to use your personal information. Your information will not be disclosed to any other individual or entity except as required by law.

Limited Access

To information we require from you means we may be unable to provide you with the services you require.

Security of your information

The Contingent is committed to protecting the security of your personal information from loss, misuse, unauthorized access, disclosure, alteration or destruction. You can be assured that we will take all reasonable steps to protect the privacy of all personal information that we collect and use.

Access and Accuracy of your information

In complying with the Privacy Act 1993 (NZ) and by you simply making a formal request to do so, we will provide you with the ability to review and update the personal information you have provided to us to ensure it is accurate and up to date.

Availability

Every effort is made to keep the website up and running smoothly. However, The Contingent takes no responsibility for, and will not be liable for, the website being temporarily unavailable due to technical issues beyond our control.

Links

Our web site will contain links to other sites that The Contingent will accept no responsibility or liability for, in terms of any material or services contained on any web site not under our control.

Changes to this Privacy Policy

The Contingent reserves the right to review and update this policy at anytime and will ensure any such changes will be posted clearly on our web site.